

INSIDE THE CULT OF BIOHACKING IN INDIA

Bohacking, or the practice of using science, technology, diet and lifestyle changes to optimise human biology and enhance performance, has a dedicated following in India. Is it all hype or does it really show results? Lounge finds out

They've been healthily fit for the longest time. The founder of Bohacking, a biohacking community in India, is a former professional athlete who has spent the last decade optimising his health and performance through science, technology, diet and lifestyle changes. He is now a biohacker himself, and his community has grown to over 100,000 members.

I have never seen anything like this before. The founder of Bohacking, a biohacking community in India, is a former professional athlete who has spent the last decade optimising his health and performance through science, technology, diet and lifestyle changes. He is now a biohacker himself, and his community has grown to over 100,000 members.

They've been healthily fit for the longest time. The founder of Bohacking, a biohacking community in India, is a former professional athlete who has spent the last decade optimising his health and performance through science, technology, diet and lifestyle changes. He is now a biohacker himself, and his community has grown to over 100,000 members.

They've been healthily fit for the longest time. The founder of Bohacking, a biohacking community in India, is a former professional athlete who has spent the last decade optimising his health and performance through science, technology, diet and lifestyle changes. He is now a biohacker himself, and his community has grown to over 100,000 members.

They've been healthily fit for the longest time. The founder of Bohacking, a biohacking community in India, is a former professional athlete who has spent the last decade optimising his health and performance through science, technology, diet and lifestyle changes. He is now a biohacker himself, and his community has grown to over 100,000 members.

They've been healthily fit for the longest time. The founder of Bohacking, a biohacking community in India, is a former professional athlete who has spent the last decade optimising his health and performance through science, technology, diet and lifestyle changes. He is now a biohacker himself, and his community has grown to over 100,000 members.

They've been healthily fit for the longest time. The founder of Bohacking, a biohacking community in India, is a former professional athlete who has spent the last decade optimising his health and performance through science, technology, diet and lifestyle changes. He is now a biohacker himself, and his community has grown to over 100,000 members.

They've been healthily fit for the longest time. The founder of Bohacking, a biohacking community in India, is a former professional athlete who has spent the last decade optimising his health and performance through science, technology, diet and lifestyle changes. He is now a biohacker himself, and his community has grown to over 100,000 members.

They've been healthily fit for the longest time. The founder of Bohacking, a biohacking community in India, is a former professional athlete who has spent the last decade optimising his health and performance through science, technology, diet and lifestyle changes. He is now a biohacker himself, and his community has grown to over 100,000 members.

Advertisement for 'A NEW WAY TO AGE' featuring a woman's face.

Advertisement for 'BRAIN LONGEVITY' featuring a brain diagram.

Advertisement for 'LIFE' featuring a bottle of supplements.

Advertisement for 'MALKANGHATTA' featuring a bottle of supplements.